Anxiety over performance is common among men; however, studies have shown that using this drug can help relax them thus making them feel more confident during sex.

Another advantage of using cannabidiol on top of its potential anti-anxiety effect is by promoting blood circulation into genitalia resulting into stronger & longer erections. It acts as a vasodilator meaning it dilates blood vessels allowing more flow through hence improving erection quality among other things related with poor or weak erections such as diabetes mellitus type 2 where patients experience neuropathy which affects nerve endings responsible for triggering an erection.
